TregoED is pleased to announce Burlington County Institute of Technology/Burlington County Special Services School District (BCIT/BCSSSD) is a recipient of the 2016 Benjamin B. Tregoe Award for Strategic Leadership in Education.

Due to District Administrators' courageous leadership and commitment to facing all challenges with clear thinking and transparent decision making, BCIT/BCSSSD has been selected to receive the 2nd Annual Benjamin B. Tregoe Award for Strategic Leadership in Education. The award, presented by Patricia Schwarber, Director of Leadership Services at TregoED, is given to school districts that achieve enduring results using TregoED tools for collaborative problem solving and decision making.

BCIT/BCSSSD is a school district with diverse populations, complex regulations, and expansive needs from pre-k to post-secondary levels. District leaders have worked hard to ensure each campus uses a common language and strategic processes to deal with the complex issues and decisions that can help move organization's forward. Their efforts have resulted in smooth administrative transitions, new career and academic programs, a complete restructuring of the main campus by grade levels, and many successful district innovations.

BCIT/BCSSSD has demonstrated their commitment to using collaborative problem solving and decision making while leveraging their investment in training at all levels and departments. The systemic integration of the TregoED processes throughout the district has increased their capacity for making the best decisions and developing innovative and lasting solutions to benefit the children they serve.

"BCIT/BCSSSD has demonstrated a commitment to clear-sighted and courageous decision making. We are thankful for the opportunity to work with this district and its leaders to help them achieve their goals.

Kathryn Blackburn, Executive Director of TregoED
